

About Us

Oulton College, established in 1956, is Atlantic Canada's premier post-secondary institution.

Oulton College is the first private career college to become degree-granting in the province. They are undergoing a massive growth phase and are poised to grow substantially over the next few years. If you have a genuine passion for student success and are seeking a fulfilling career in the education sector, we encourage you to explore the possibilities of joining our team at Oulton College.

Job Description

Oulton College is looking to add a valuable member of our Policing and Corrections faculty team in a part-time or full-time role. This role will include hands-on work in our on-site gym, as well as some didactic teaching.

The Defensive Tactics course that will be taught prepares students to work safely and effectively in law enforcement or security settings. This course emphasizes critical thinking, situational awareness, and tactical decision-making while equipping students with practical skills and best practices relevant to law enforcement personnel.

Some of the responsibilities you can expect are:

- Deliver engaging and practical instruction in defensive tactics.
- Implement lesson plans aligned with learning outcomes.
- Provide hands-on demonstrations and supervise student practice of techniques.
- Evaluate student performance through both practical and written assessments.
- Incorporate real-world examples and best practices from policing, corrections, and security fields.
